

FUGITIVE CAUGHT
AFTER LONG CHASE

Man Who a Year Ago Stabbed
Hoboken Employer 19
Times Found Here.

Genaro Volpe dodged the police of this city and Hoboken for the past year, but to-day fell into the clutches of Detective Cassidy and Digilio, of the new Harlem Central O. C. He is wanted for stabbing Luigi Sambetti, of No. 20, Second street, Hoboken, nineteen times and leaving a scabbie sticking in his back.

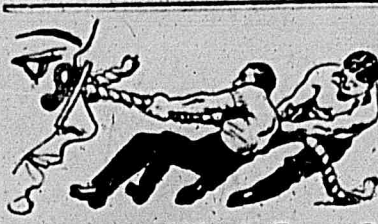

Sambetti is a butcher and Volpe worked in the shop. On Jan. 14 last a pretty young woman entered the shop and ordered a steak. Volpe smiled on her and said he would give her a monstrous slice for a kiss. She promptly uprooted him just as the boss came in.

Then she explained and the butcher turned to Volpe and rendered the Italian equivalent of "beat it." The young man put on his hat and coat, collected what was due him and started out. As he got near the door he noticed that Sambetti was leaning over a barrel. He could not resist the opportunity and whipped out his blade.

Surgical skill saved the butcher's life, but the Hawkshaw of Hoboken could get no trace of the assailant. He was arrested to-day at a little butcher shop of his own he had started at No. 315 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street, and held for extradition.

DANCED TO HIS MEMORY.

Weimer's Will Provided for Annual Ball on Death Anniversary. BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 12.—In accordance with the last wishes and testament of the late Julius Weimer, the members of the Schwanbacher Maennerchor danced to his memory in their hall last night. The revelers made merry on the anniversary of his death, keeping faith with the trust which he imposed before his demise.
